A Curious Tomb.

Reston Journal.

In the ancient burying ground at East Roxlord, in this State, there is a curious tomb, visited by many people in the course of a year. Thir is the tomb of General Solomon Low, who was buried here in 1881, of and who died at the age of seventy-nine tyenrs. It was designed by himself, and has on each side of the entrance two bandsonne white marble gravestones, erected to the memory of his three wives, who are talso interred here. On each stone are carved nictures of two of his wives. The first two are represented with their childred around them and infants in their arms. They are sitting in antique chairs with straight backs. The two wives represented on the second stone are sitting in modern rocking chairs beside a centre table, on which are books. The fourth wife is still living. When the adjacent ground in was used for a muster-field, the tomb was always opeced for one day, and the Generat's regimentals were exhibited there, in accordance with directions in his will.

October will bit a fine month for star gez ing, but those who wish to behold the chief glories of the sky will have to be up after midnight. Jupiter, Saturn, Mare and Uranus are all morning stars, and the three will easily show the outlines of his conti-nents and oceans.

Uranus is too lar away to be interesting for the possessor of a small telescope, but Professor Young, with the great Princeton refractor, has recently seen markings upon the surface of this distant planet by means of which he thinks its rate of rotation on its axis can be ascertained.

How Wooden Spools are Made.

Lexiston (We ) Journal.

The birch is first sawed into sticks four or five feet long and seven-eighths of an inch to three inches equare, according to the size of the spool to be produced. These sticks are thoroughly seasoned. They are sawed into short blocks, and the blocks are dried in a hot air kiln. At the time they are dried in a hot air kiln. At the time they are dried in a hot air kiln. At the time they are for whirl of the little block against sharp knives, sharpened by a painer, makes the spool at the rate of one per accond. A small boy feeds the spool machine, simply placing the blocks in a spout and throwing out the knotty or defective stock. The machine is automatic, but can not do the sorting. The spools are revolved rapidly in drums and polish themselves. For some purposes they are dred ved veilles, and or block. The are made defective stock: The machine is automatic, but can not do the sorting. The spools are revolved rapidly in drums and polish themselves. For some purposes they are dyed yellow, red, or black. They are made in thousands of shapes and sizes. When one sees on a spool of thread "100 yards" or "900 yards" these words do sot signify the thread has been measured, but that the spool has been gauged and is supposed to contain so much thread. When a silk or linen or a cotton firm wants a spool made it sends a pattern to the spool-maker. This pattern gives the siz and shape of the barptism of the spool of the part of the patiern gives the siz and shape of the bar-rel and of the head and bevel. These pat-terns determine the amount of thread that the spool will hold. Breeding Horses, Piliburgh Sockman.

That climate and food have an effect on the growth and condition of horses, no one of an observing turn of mind will attempt to deny, but an English cotemporary puls it pretty strong when it says that the question of breeding is no doubt a very important one, but we must know also the climate they breathed, the average rainfail, the chemical constituents of the soil, the Miliburgh Stockman. mate they breathed, the average rainfall, the chemical consitients of the soil, the pasture, and everything in animal's history nowadays. Where nature won't breed them man need never try, and nature won't grow grapts where she has been given material to grow goesberries. Thousands of pounds have been lost by breeders ignoring the conditions of soil and climate, and thousands of pounds are, no doubt, being lost at the present time. Hammers and nails can't build up in the young colt what the Americans call "grit," a something about horse or man which is required to work the machinery. No matter how good looking a horse may be, if he has not this, and this after all does not come so much from sire or dam as from the nourishment supplied after birth. He is like an 18-horse-power engine, on 18-don key-power steam.

Manoring Fruit Trees.

Handring Fruit Trees.

Eachange.

In manuring fruit trees or grapevines the manure should not, as it is too frequently, be piled up in a heap immediately round the base of the tree. Here is where it will do the least good, as the roots near the truck of the tree are large. The roots which will take up the fertilizing matter and carry it into the tree are large. The roots one, really the feeders, and situated farthest from the trunk. As these roots extend, as a role, under an area of ground qual to that covered by the top of the ree, the manure should be spread over at least an qual surface. In order to thave the better effect it should be thoroughly spaded in. If sickly and apparently dying tree be given this treatment it will rarely fail to restore them to new life and vigor. Trees need at liberal supply of food, and unless it is given them they cannot be expected to grow and bear, either in quantity er quality, such fruit as will as more and $2.5000 and $2.5000

The Sound of Falling Water.

Pall Mall Gazette.

The sound of water is singularly sensitive to an intervening object. It seems to lack more than other sounds the power of diffusing itself in the acoustic shadow best into the obstacle, so that as one dips into the shadow the sound is rapidly husbed. Close to us is cascade which illustrates this this point. A singular effect was noticed an evening or two ago. On approaching our cottage after an excursion up the mountain, the sound of the falling water became suddenly audible. The direction of the sound was not all that of the cascade, still its character proved the cascade to be its origin. The riddle was soon solved. A large outer door, put on for extra protection during the winter, stood ajar. Upon it the sonorous waves from the cascade impinged, and by it they were thrown into the sound shadow where we stood, the direct sound being there inaudible. When the door was opened and closed intentionally, it was in the highest degree curious to hear, at a peeniar angle, the babbie of the cascade suddenly arise, as if it had for the moment quitted its true position and established itself behind the door.

Regular Time for Burini.

Regular Time for Burial.

Regular Time for Burial.

Team Siftings.

The Lampton family have lost by death five or eix children, but the births are pretty much in the ratio of the deaths, so that the family is far from being childless. A few weeks ago there was another death in the family, and the undertaker's assistant called at the house. A small boy met him at the door.

"Is your pa in?"

"What do yo want to see him about?"

"Iwant to ask him when the funeral takes place."

"You needn't see him then at all, if that is all you want. I can tell you that. Papa always buries us at 4 o'clock in the afternoom."

Midnight. Jupiter, Saturn, Mars and Uranus are all morning stars, and the three first named are very brilliant. Saturn's rings are so widely opened now that asmall telescope will show them, and in a good telescope the great planet looks like an exquisitely carved bail of ivory shaded with delicate that and surrounded by a double ring of gold even more beautifully ornamented.

Jupiter presents a wonderful appearance, his disk being covered with colored spots and belts which changed continually in form and tint, and furnishing no end of material for speculation as to what can be going on upon this giant globe to produce thisaurprising phenomena, visible at the distance of 400,000,000 miles. Exceptin the sun there is not within the range of human eyesight any exhibition of material power equal to that presented by the unstable surface of the greatest of the planets.

Mars is not in a position specially favorable for observation, but powerful telescopes will easily show the outlines of his continents and oceans.

The best interest of humanity depend upon the good health of our women folks, and yet those with brightest intellects seem to suffer most with allments peouliar to female life.
